Autumn Dress Goods.

Best in Style. Best in Assortment. Lowest in Price.

Dress Goods form an important part of this store's business—to be precise, it is our most decided specialty. And that is the very good reason why you always find what you want here at the price you want to pay.

Our assortments embrace all the new weaves and popular color effects—our fabrics are always fashionable—and our prices are generally a few cents lower per yard than other stores', which means much on a purchase of several yards.

VALLEY OF VIRGINIA*LATE HAPPENINGS IN THE WINCHESTER SECTION.

Special Correspondence of The Star.
WINCHESTER, Va., October 5, 1907.
Many residents of Winchester are wrought up because of action by the common council at its meeting this week appointing a special tax commission to ascertain to what extent a number of persons of means have failed to make returns to the commissioner of revenue of their taxable personal property. It is alleged that many have made false returns, and during the civil war was a captain in the Federal army. He resigned his position at Annapolis several years ago on account of ill health. His wife, two sons and four daughters survive. The funeral took place this afternoon, with interment in St. John's Church cemetery, near Rosenberg.

Sustains Serious Injury.
Miss Lillie Bursey, daughter of Mrs. Lavinia Bursey of Brucetown, this county, is suffering from concussion of the brain and numerous severe cuts and bruises, as the result of being hurled from a buggy in which she and her mother were seated at a railroad station last Wednesday evening. Their horse became frightened and dashed off, throwing the two women out. Mrs. Bursey escaped with a few bruises, but her daughter fell on her head and was seriously injured. It is stated, however, that she will recover.

AROUND THE CITY

They were two middle-aged women who were carrying their own market baskets, and they stood by the escalator of a large department store. At the first glimpse of the moving stairway the stout woman with white-threaded needle stuck in the redundancy of her sateen shirt waist exclaimed: "Why, there's that eskvator the girls are crazy about—let's go up!" The woman in the navy blue something, with white dots in it, was evidently not built on a veritable plan. "Up that thing? Not if I know myself! For the land's sake, what is it, anyhow?" "Oh, come along. All you got to do is to stand on the bottom step and get carried up without moving."

GREECE TO SEND MINISTER.

State Department Officially Informed of the Design.
Through Minister Jackson, the State Department has been officially advised of the design of the Grecian government to be represented hereafter in Washington by a minister plenipotentiary. The department has replied, expressing the pleasure with which it has received the announcement, and declaring that the measure will doubtless go far toward strengthening the present cordial relations between the United States and Greece. Nothing has so far been said about the personality of the minister to represent Greece in Washington.

empty. Let's try—" But it wasn't a good chance, for a spry little old woman who had obviously never experienced the novelty of a moving stairway proceeded to mount as if she were going up ordinary steps. "When she got to the second floor, breathless and generally demoralized, a waiting attendant offered the usual assistance, but the spry little old woman jerked away from his arm. "I didn't want to come upstairs," she gasped. The polite attendant reminded her that she could go down on the elevator. "But I didn't want to come upstairs." "Yes, madam, I understand; but the elevator will take you down again." "But didn't I tell you I didn't want to come upstairs?" "Just hear to that; will you?" said the spry little old woman. "See what them moving steps done to her! She didn't want to go up, no more'n I do." Then why, in the name of sense, did she stand on the step? Here, watch my basket for me; I'm bound to have a try at everything that comes along." The needle woman got at the bottom step of the escalator, tucked her black sateen tight around her as if she were literally going to wade in, put one substantial hand in the rail and smiled with supreme delight. In about two minutes she was back to her companion, her face in a fever glow of exhilaration. "Wait just another minute, Sue; I'm going to do it all over again. It's grand." "You better come along home and put your pet to bed. If you're going to have soup for dinner, I'm going this minute, because when I make soup I make it." The needle woman took up her basket and sighed regretfully. "I reckon I better had be startin' in, but I wish I had a chance at an airship. I'd go up in one if I knew I was never coming down again." Then she probably went home and made soup every bit as good as the soup made by the friend in navy blue. "Three services weekly." And a tourist woman in a blue and yellow badge remarked to her man companion, who was likewise labeled: "I suppose that's a gospel wagon, but it's the queerest shape I ever saw."

MURDERED BY A NEGRO*CUMBERLAND POLICEMAN KILLED WHILE ON DUTY.

CUMBERLAND, Md., October 5.—August Baker, city patrolman for eight years, died this morning at 3:30 o'clock from a pistol wound inflicted by William Burns, colored, who came here from Fauquier county, Va., about six months ago. Burns was resisting arrest on Thursday night when he shot Officer Baker. The wound was in the abdomen, and his case was regarded as hopeless from the start. The surgeons found two holes in the stomach and they were obliged to remove one of the kidneys. Other injuries were also found. Baker was nearly sixty years of age. Officer Charles W. Goss has a card which Officer Baker had in his upper vest pocket, through which the bullet fired by Burns passed. The card was one used by Edward Douglass, a deaf mute, to solicit alms. It was blood-stained, and the old man paid no heed. Then the horn tooted again. By the time the third toot had sounded the chauffeur had slackened speed until the machine fairly crawled and finally stood stockstill. When the old man was safe on the curb it whizzed by. Two men on the corner took in the incident. When it was over one of them said: "Idiot! Heave their usas." "I suppose there are thousands of careful drivers like that to one reckless idiot, and yet the fellow who runs down everything in his way gets into the papers and hurts the reputation of all the others. You never see the careful ones in print." "Idiot! Heave their usas," remarked the other man, who had the air of taking life easy. "They figure up as the dramatic exceptions to the monotonous rule. Good people generally make tame reading. It is to the exceptions you must look for live copy." And while they talked the elderly man with the preoccupied air meandered across to the Treasury and did everything in his power to be run over by two green cars.
